Fire Damages Schnierle's Cafe In Motel Marion

Schnierle's cafe at Motel Marion was so badly damaged by fire at noon yesterday that Eugene Schnierle of Harrisburg, the operator, estimated that it will be about a month before it can be put back into operation.

Schnierle said that the upper part of the building was burned but that about everything in the building was damaged by water and smoke.

The fire broke out at 11:20 a. m., while Schnierle and the restaurant personnel were getting ready for the Sunday dinner crowd. The Marion fire department battled the blaze for about an hour.

Schnierle said the fire occurred when bits of charcoal from a charcoal broiler caught some filters afire. As a reward for their efforts, the firefighters ate the dinners that they helped to save.

Ike Returns to Office; First Since Operation

Discusses Atomic, Foreign Problems At Work Session

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower, still wearing a bandage, discussed atomic and foreign policy problems today on his first return to his White House desk since his operation more than five weeks ago.

Mr. Eisenhower arrived at his office at 8:20 a. m. EDT and held a brief work session with his staff before swinging into a limited series of appointments.

He conferred with Adm. Lewis W. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. He later called in Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for a foreign policy review and to discuss plans for the Panama conference of American presidents which the President will attend this weekend.

Mr. Eisenhower Tuesday will confer with Republican leaders of the House and Senate and on Thursday he will preside at a meeting of the National Security Council.

On Friday the chief executive plans what the White House described as an "expanded" council meeting which will include representatives of the departments and agencies participating in the new civil defense Operation Alert which begins Friday.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower will not hold a news conference this week. Neither will he have a formal Cabinet meeting before he leaves for Panama Friday night.

It Is Time To Do Something About Harrisburg's Water

(An Editorial)

Water from the Harrisburg city system continues to taste like a wet dog smells, and it appears high time that something be done about it.

Harrisburg residents who supported a move to build a new lake can't understand why they have to use water with such a terrible taste, restaurant owners don't like to be forced to go to Carrier Mills to get water for tea and coffee, and visitors certainly don't get a good impression when they stop in Harrisburg and are offered a drink.

Actually, the present situation has nothing to do with supply. A part of the difficulty may be caused by installation of the new filter plant addition, but there is evidence that the terrible taste and odor is due to decaying vegetation in the two stand-by reservoirs. When a like situation arose previously, it was blamed on vegetation, and it is known that when the stand-by reservoirs were filled at the end of the drought last summer, there was a considerable amount of cut and uncut weeds in the south reservoir. Proper treatment would have settled resulting decaying matter.

There is ample water in the stand-by reservoirs, to say nothing of the huge supply in the new reservoir. However, some of the difficulty might have been avoided if a higher water level had been maintained in the stand-bys.

To fill the stand-bys from the new lake, it is necessary to block off the contaminated Bankston Fork ditch, and the flow of water in that ditch, due to frequent rains, has made this operation difficult, although it may be done if necessary.

It is an open secret among those acquainted with operations of the city water board and the city council that there has been disagreement as to the water department operations, and some of the blame for the present water situation may be laid to that situation.

Under the ordinance by which the water system was set up when it was purchased by the city, the water board is authorized to operate the system, handle its own finances, employ its own personnel, and otherwise initiate and carry on all operations, subject only to a veto, by resolution of the city council by a vote of at least four members of the council.

Whether this method of operation is satisfactory might be a moot question, but it would appear that responsibility of operation should rest with either one group or another, and the matter should be resolved to the best interest of the city as a whole.

A special meeting of the water board has been called for tonight by Chairman Bill Melton to discuss the situation, and it is likely there will be further developments at the meeting of the city council Tuesday.

Admits Cashing Questionable State Checks

Says He Approved Checks at Request Of Auditor, Hodge

SPRINGFIELD — Chicago banker Edward A. Hintz today refused to sign a prosecution immunity waiver and was not called to testify before a grand jury investigation of a half million dollars in irregularities in the state auditor's office.

Hintz, resigned president of the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago, earlier had said he was preparing to "tell all" to the grand jury.

Hintz said he approved cashing of 26 questionable state checks issued by the office of State Auditor Orville E. Hodge.

Hintz said he approved the checks at Hodge's request. After his refusal to sign the immunity waiver, Hintz issued a statement which said:

"I came here willing and ready to testify before the grand jury expected to be permitted to do so, the same as any other witness. I was not permitted to do so, unless I signed a document designated as an immunity waiver.

"My attorneys advised me not to sign a document of that character."

An immunity waiver permits use of a witness' testimony against him in a possible criminal action. State's Atty. George P. Coutrakon said he would take up Hintz's refusal to sign with the Cook County state's attorney. He said if he granted Hintz immunity it would "deprive Cook County of any possible prosecution" of Hintz.

Will Not Waive Prosecution

"It's possible, but I don't think I would" grant Hintz immunity "in any event," Coutrakon said. Hintz's refusal to sign an immunity waiver raised the possibility the grand jury would not hear any witnesses today.

Coutrakon said he would also ask Lloyd Lane, a key Hodge aide; John J. Casper, caretaker of Hodge's Lake Springfield home, and Thomas F. Shanahan, custodian of the auditor's office warehouses, to sign immunity waivers.

Lane said he would not sign such a waiver "without legal counsel." Casper and Shanahan said they were not prepared to say whether they would sign such waivers.

Earlier Coutrakon had said Hintz' statement that he (Hintz) had approved the cashing of a number of questionable state checks could speed up the investigation.

Hintz arrived at the courthouse shortly before Coutrakon. The grand jury, called to investigate alleged irregularities in the accounts of State Auditor Orville E. Hodge estimated at more than $500,000, met in the Sangamon County circuit courtroom where Abraham Lincoln once served as a state legislator when the courthouse was the state Capitol.

Hintz earlier said he would tell the grand jury that he cashed questionable state warrants (checks) at the request of Hodge. He resigned Friday as president of the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co., Chicago.

He said he personally approved the cashing of at least 26 checks totaling about $269,000 by persons other than the rightful payee. He said he did it out of friendship for Hodge, and that he was never paid for this service.

Embers of Liberty Flame

Editorial — By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Once again—in Poland this time—men have shown that they have the spirit and courage to rise up in rebellion even when the tyranny they endure holds a terrifying monopoly of the weapons of power.

The world learned this in the popular riots in Communist East Berlin on June 17, 1953. Now the lesson is given again in Poznan, a major city in Red-ruled Poland.

This revolt began as a bread-and-hunger march. When the Communist government's sterile answer to workers' pleas was only to bring up guns and tanks, a full-fledged rebellion followed. Buildings were stormed, the city prison emptied, a radio station seized, and streetcars overturned for use as barricades.

The Warsaw government acknowledges less than 50 dead, but travelers returning to other lands from Poznan say the total may be as high as 800 after three days of bitter street fighting.

The event is of profound significance for the future of communism. It casts a long shadow on the shining "new look" that Russian Communist leaders have been cultivating so assiduously for months and months.

The present-day Kremlin, through its spectacular assaults on the reputation and regime of Joseph Stalin, has been trying to release some of the popular pressures built up both within Russia and in the East European satellites during his iron tenure.

This has left many Communist leaders in the satellites and beyond gravely puzzled and embarrassed. And, evidently, it has encouraged satellite citizens like the workers of Poznan to imagine that they might speak out for food in a regime where the reins are being relaxed.

That Warsaw's reply was tanks and guns must inevitably disclose the shallowness of the Kremlin's desperate attempt to set itself on a plane above the brutal Stalin.

Communist tyranny, which has spent two generations stepping on the bodies of its people while it raised a great military structure, can find nothing better than its conventional repression when it seeks to curb a popular response of the very sort its "new look" was bound to stimulate.

Warsaw's ready use of force against unarmed marchers affords fresh proof, too, that the Communists' pose as the workers' government is a thorough fraud. For in Poznan, as in East Berlin, the world could see the illuminating spectacle of a workers' revolt being crushed by the hard steel of an alleged "workers' government."

Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz gave the game away when he declared: "Everyone who raises his hand against the people may be sure it will be hacked off in the interest of the working class."

The people, of course, were in the streets. But they were in front of, not in or behind, the tanks and the guns. If millions of troubled folk lured by communism's fantasy could appreciate this elemental fact, they might thereafter be deaf to its siren call. This is truly an instruction for the world.

It is fitting that the people of Poland should give it. For centuries at a time they have known oppression, but their love of freedom never dies. Now and again it has erupted successfully to let them establish themselves as rulers in their own house. Often, as now, the uprising crumbles in failure.

But today, as always, free men everywhere salute the courageous Poles who keep the flame alive in their hearts. They know the moment will come again when Poland will throw off its yoke and enjoy the liberty it cherishes in even the grimmest adversity.

"Your Fault!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Lyndon Johnson Promises Early Vote On Election Reforms; Nixon Bloopers Threaten U. S.-Indian Amity; Republicans Relish Choice Of Clement A Key-note.

WASHINGTON. — Missouri's persistent Sen. Tom Hennings finally wangled a promise out of Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson to let the Senate vote on the long-bottled election reforms.

For months Hennings has sought action on his honest elections bill to clean up campaign corruption. The issue exploded into the headlines after South Dakota's GOP Sen. Francis Case revealed he had turned down a $2,500 contribution from a Superior Oil company lobbyist just before the vote on the gas bill.

At that time Johnson ignored Hennings' carefully prepared bill and hastily joined Senate GOP Leader Bill Knowland in sponsoring election reforms of their own. Actually they used most of the Hennings bill. But as soon as the headlines died down, Johnson's enthusiasm for election reforms also abated.

Behind the closed doors of the Senate Democratic Policy committee, however, Hennings reminded Johnson that it was time to vote on the honest elections bill.

"All right, but give me a week," Johnson finally agreed. "I've got to get Knowland to go along."

Two obstacles, he said, threatened to upset the Johnson-Knowland compromise. First, Arizona's GOP Sen. Barry Goldwater wanted to force labor unions to get approval of the entire membership before spending money for political purposes. This would be opposed by pro-labor Democrats.

Second, Tennessee's Democrat Sen. Albert Gore wanted to prohibit outsiders from spending more than $1,000 in any state election. This was aimed at the big Republican millionaires, hence would be opposed by the Republicans.

Johnson said he would talk to Gore about withdrawing his amendment and urge Knowland to call off Goldwater. Then, he promised, the way would be paved for a quick vote on the honest elections bill.

NEHRU VS. NIXON

Ambassador John Sherman Cooper said a month ago that it would be "the height of irresponsibility" for him to resign his post in India to run for the Senate. Last week when he read what Vice President Nixon had said in Karachi about the key Indian statesman Cooper had been nursing, Cooper knew that irresponsibility had reached its height.

Not only was he leaving the post which he said he would not leave and where he has done an excellent job for the United States, but Nixon's brash remarks tore down just what Cooper and Eisenhower himself had tried to build up.

In June, just before he became ill, Ike had talked sympathetically about neutrals. He even defended them. He had Premier Nehru in mind when he made the statement. Though the statement was reversed by the White House in order to appease various non-neutrals, Eisenhower and Cooper were working out a sort of middle ground regarding neutrality. Nehru has argued, during talks with Cooper, that international tension only strengthens the Kremlin dictatorship. Dictators, he said, use tension as an excuse to tighten their power. By relaxing tension the United States can stimulate the democratic forces inside Russia.

He deplored belligerent speeches by official American hotheads. But just as some progress was being made along these lines, Vice President Nixon became an official American hothead. He popped off against Nehru, choosing, of all places, Pakistan, as the place to do it. Pakistan is India's bitter rival and potential enemy.

All this was why Dulles turned an almost complete handspring next day and came out with a soothing statement on neutrality. He wanted to counteract Nixon.

Note — The Ike administration has now turned four handsprings on neutrality. First, Ike himself on June 6 favored neutrality. Next day the White House issued a statement reversing Ike. That week end Dulles made a speech at Ames, Iowa, also reversing Ike. He opposed neutrality. Then Nixon backed him up. Now Dulles has partly pulled the neutrality rug out from under both Nixon and himself.

REPUBLICANS SMILE

Republicans have done some quick investigating of Gov. Frank Clement, the rootin'-tootin' boy orator from Tennessee who is the Democrats' keynote speaker, and they couldn't be happier with the Democrat choice.

They find he has so many skeletons in his political closet that the Democrats will have a hard time talking much about Dick Nixon's $18,000 personal expense fund. If Clement is ever picked for vice president, the GOP knows right where the bodies are buried. Also, the Republicans are not unhappy over the way the Democrats are still mulling their opportunities.

The Republicans picked their keynote, Governor Langlie of Washington, to give him a boost in trying to unseat veteran Sen. Warren Magnuson, longtime Democratic representative of Washington state in Washington, D. C. The Democrats could have given a similar boost to an outstanding candidate.

They could have picked as keynote Governor Muskie of Maine, first Democratic governor in rock-ribbed Republican Maine in 20 years. He comes up for re-election September 10. They could have picked Magnuson, who faces a fight from Governor Langlie; or Senator Clements of Kentucky, the Senate whip who faces an indirect, underhanded re-election battle from Republican Happy Chandler in Kentucky.

Or they could have picked Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who risked his political future by becoming a Democrat, thereby helping the Democrats to control the Senate.

Instead they picked a 36-year-old windjammer who, like Nixon, used political money for personal purposes. The Democrats, smile the Republicans, just aren't smart.

Superstitious Pedestrians

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Radio station WRFC conducted a "bad luck" poll Friday by placing a ladder against a building so that it partly blocked a downtown sidewalk. During a 30-minute interval 200 pedestrians who passed took the trouble to walk around the ladder, while only 30 walked under it, the station reported.

A Close Call

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Charles Downs, 18, believes he stretched his luck to the limit on Friday the 13th. Downs lost his balance while working on the 31st floor of an office building here and fell down the framework of an elevator shaft. At the 27th floor he managed to grab a cable and save himself.

Imported Fuel Cheaper

TOKYO (AP) — U. S. Army installations in Japan will switch from Japanese coal to imported fuel oil soon to cut heating costs, it was announced today. The Army said the change resulted from the recent rise in the price of Japanese coal, coupled with a regulation requiring use of the most economic method.

NOTICE

The Saline County Central Labor Council, Local No. 2, which represents nine local unions, at their regular stated meeting July 13, 1956, voted unanimously to back the Stationary Engineers local No. 815, who are employees of the Harrisburg Water Department, in their demand for a wage increase.

This local is affiliated with this Labor Council. These employees have not had a wage increase in three years, while cost of living has increased until they feel they have a right to ask for this wage increase.

The water board has voted twice to allow this increase, but the City Council has rejected the water board's decision both times.

The Labor Council also objects to any councilman serving as commissioner on the City Board who lives outside the city limits.

XXXIII

In another hour they had crossed through the saddle and were dropping into the chalky basin. The horses had stopped sweating. They stretched out in a long line; black, brown and russet against a colorless expanse of sand waste. Their eyes crept with primal fascination toward dust devils that whipped in hot squalls across the desert. Frank had no way of measuring the heat but he estimated the thermometer would stand near 120. The prevalent wind had become a tormenting vacuum that blotted moisture out of bone and tissue.

Swede set the pace at a leisurely walk calculated to conserve the animals. Most of this time Jean had remained out of saddle, righting occasional stones as they overturned beneath their horses' hoofs. Frank focused his gaze on their backtrail and was unable to find a single sign of their passage through the pass. Now when Jean reeled against her bay he kicked loose his oxbows.

The heat of the earth came through the soles of his boots as he ran to Jean. He found her clutching her saddle, her eyes tightly closed.

He took her in his arms and had to break her hold on the saddle. She lifted her face to him, but without opening her eyes. She whispered, "Frank, do you think I've made a mistake in choosing the malpais? This isn't the worst—we aren't there yet."

"Think of cool shade. Think of the well at Rafters."

"There's a saying that a woman who starts with her man never quits the ride. I'd like to know, Frank. Do you think this is the real thing?"

"Yes," he said quietly. He lifted his canteen to her ordering her to drink. Already the canteen was frightfully light.

Once again they rode on in the wake of the herd. The water had gone down their parched throats with a torpid and rasping sensation. Around them rose an up-flung mass of buttes and pinnacles, red, brown and yellow; an uncharted, sweltering lake bed lacking in vegetation, in life, in hope.

Jean pointed to a vague, bluish peak that had a distracting characteristic of vanishing behind the heat waves.

"Dad told me long ago I was to follow the peak if I lost my way on the malpais. That's Gobbler's Knob. Half way from the saddle are The Pits. Water in them, Frank. We've got to be that lucky! If not—" she shrugged. "In the long ago days Mojaves hid out at The Pits. I think they had some secret of tapping an underground stream. They were never afraid to ride onto the badlands. Perhaps, though, they sealed their springs so white men would never control the water in the pits."

They rode in silence. He knew Norring should be on their backtrail and his absence didn't check with what Frank expected. Norring was a man never content with his lot. He would move heaven and earth for additional power; and Milo Hackett was a man ruled by reckless temper. Only the circumstances of Lily's death and her funeral had sidetracked Norring from immediate chase.

Darkness came down long afterwards blotting a terrible world. They followed a pathway marked by bleached skulls, each ghostly marker to Vogel's trail blazing.

The moon rose steadily, heeled-over, and beneath its eerie light the malpais was transformed into a nightmare of fantastic patterns. The closer knobs and pinnacles reared against the slate colored sky. From any of these peaks Emmett Cash could ambush them. Or Steve Norring.

Frank judged it was close to midnight before they lowered by abrupt and sometimes violent stages into a vast depression. The gurgle of water sent memories of other pools lashing at their minds. Their thirsty horses began bolting toward the north. A few minutes later they reached a low lying lake, black against its setting of basaltic rock. Frank lifted Jean from her saddle while his crewmen joined about them.

"We bed down here for an hour," he told them. "Alex, take your drink. Then backtrack to the rim and watch. Keep your eyes peeled."

They were worn low, but not too low. An hour would resuscitate both vitality and purpose. Right now Frank realized they should be pulling the herd back from the lake. He didn't want them to drink too heavily at first. He brushed past Hyman leaning against his grulla and was struck by how gaunted and drawn together the musician appeared. He gave him a closer survey, wondering if Hyman would be able to take much more. "What're you thinking, friend?"

Hyman's head shot up, the straight line of his mouth softening at the edges. "I don't know, Dante, I expect."

It brought a full blown grin to Frank's parched lips. "Time to change your tune. We've hit water!"

He went down to the hard, rock beach of the lake and had his own fill lying full-out with his face in the water. The surface of the rock between his hands was worn so even he began to ponder how many centuries this place had been used as a watering hole, and by how many unnamed races.

He came to his feet shaking off his mood and began pushing the horses away, one by one.

Earthquake Hits Japan
TOKYO (AP) — An earthquake rocked the southeastern section of Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, early today. No immediate reports of damage were received.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
Written for NEA Service

It seems that a tremendous number of people are running around with hurt feelings. Someone criticized these "hurt" people unjustly. Someone advised them they were making a lot of mistakes. Others merely imagine they are being mistreated or misunderstood. Psychologists advise us that "hurt feelings" are symptoms of frustration or maladjustment. Of course, we are living in an age of confusion and conflict which have their effect on individuals as well as on nations. We cannot correct national frustrations with a sweep of the hand, nor with hysterics. However, we can do a great deal for ourselves and for others by adjusting our lives to a positive order of thought.

Prayer changes life. When we talk to God, we find that our big problems become much smaller. When we help other people to know God, we find our "hurt feelings" disappearing. When we give ourselves to a life of service, we do not have time to be worried about criticism and mistreatment, whether the criticism and mistreatment are real or imagined.

Millions of people all over the world have found peace and calm in the face of cold war and inner conflict by turning to God. They have found reality in religion of fear and political pressures.

When enough people have been relieved of their frustrations through finding God's way, there will be a change in nations. After all, nations are made up of individuals.

Fire Destroys Old Wanamaker Store In New York; Water Floods Subway

NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands of subway commuters took alternate routes to reach their jobs in lower Manhattan today where a 25-hour fire destroyed the old John Wanamaker department store and crippled underground transportation.

Tons of water poured into the empty store on lower Broadway and flooded two East Side arteries of the city's subway system. The 94-year-old building was gutted by the blaze.

Newspapers published special maps with detailed instructions on alternate routes to the downtown area in an effort to alleviate congestion resulting from the flooded subways.

At 7:30 a. m. today borough commanders of the police department reported congestion at a minimum and transportation in general near normal.

Two subway arteries running near the building were knocked out from the torrents of water that cascaded from the burning building into the tunnels below.

The water flooded sections of the Interboro Rapid Transit System and the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit System cutting off express service south of Grand Central on 42nd Street and halting all service northward from the Brooklyn Bridge on Manhattan's East Side.

The Transit Authority announced at 6:30 a. m. that express service had been restored on the Brooklyn-Manhattan system. Service on the southbound local track was expected to be restored shortly, the TA said.

In addition to crippling the subways, 20 of the 525 firemen who fought the blaze were hospitalized while another 196 were treated at the scene for smoke poisoning, cuts and abrasions.

The mercantile palace was built in 1862 on Broadway's then fashionable "Ladies Mile." The Wanamakers took it over in 1896 and abandoned it in 1934 to move to the suburbs.

London Teddy-Boys Interrupt Girl Evangelist

LONDON (AP)—Renee Mertz, a 15-year-old girl evangelist from Chicago, said today she will "say a little prayer" for England's 200-suit "teddy boys" who interrupted her sermon with wolf whistles.

Several teen-age London boys gave forth with some loud wolf calls Sunday night when Renee, wearing a tight sweater and a red skirt, began her sermon on the theme, "Love is a many splendored thing."

The teddy boys, so-called because of their narrow pegged pants, velvet-collared jackets and flowing haircuts harking back to the turn of the century, were invited to the meeting by church members.

The boys seemed to like the American girl and went to some length to show their approval, but some church members said they were't so sure they liked the teddies.

"Some of them went out for a smoke halfway through the service," said the Rev. Francis Thomas. "They just aren't used to being in church."

When Renee launched into her swing-style version of a gospel song the boys applauded and cheered.

And when she asked all those who wanted to be converted to raise their hands, half the teddies did so. "Conversion," meant a brief talk with Renee after the service.

"I asked her out for a drink," one "convert" confessed. "But she wouldn't come."

Renee said she will "say a little prayer" for her new audience.

"Britain sure has a teen-age problem," the teen-ager declared.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Mrs. Vergie Simpson, who passed away one year ago July 15:

I have lost my life's companion, A life linked with my own, And every day I miss her more As I walk through life alone.

The call was short and the shock severe, To part with one I love so dear. No one knows the silent heart-aches Only those who have lost can tell.

Of the grief I bear in silence For the one I love so well. I never knew that hearts could ache

With such bitter pain, Longing for a vanished face, To hear her voice again.

I never knew that nights could be so lonely, cold and dim.

But Oh, I learned so many things because of losing her. I would give it all and more, To see her face I love so dear.

Come smiling through my door. Sadly missed by husband, Hubert Simpson and children. *15-1

Stan Musial Takes Over National Batting Lead in Bid for His Seventh Title

By United Press
Stan Musial took over the National League batting lead for the first time this season in a powerful bid to make good his prediction that he'll win the seventh title of his career.

The 35-year old Musial hammered out seven hits in nine trips as the St. Louis Cardinals split a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Phillies Sunday, to lift his average to .327 and take the lead from Cincinnati's Ed Bailey by one point. Musial, who also leads the National League with 69 runs batted in, has walloped 12 hits in 20 tries for a .600 mark since the All-Star interlude.

Stan the Man drove in three runs with a single, double and homer to lead the Cardinals to a 9-1 win in the opener and had two doubles, a triple and a single in five tries although the Redbirds dropped the nightcap, 7-5. Murry Dickson won his seventh game in the opener while Saul Rogovin was credited with his fifth win for the Phillies in the second game.

Dark Supports Stan

Alvin Dark, continuing his blazing run All-Star batting pace, supported Musial with three hits in the first game but was held to one hit in five attempts in the nightcap.

A seventh batting title would enable Musial to tie Rogers Hornsby and leave him one short of the National League mark held by Honus Wagner. Ty Cobb holds the big league mark of 12 batting championships.

The Milwaukee Braves, meanwhile, retained their two-game hold on first place in the NL when they downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2 and 4-1. Warren Spahn won his eighth game in the opener when Vern Law walked Danny O'Connell with the bases filled in the eighth inning while Bob Trowbridge and Taylor Phillips collaborated in a six-hitter in the second game.

Redlegs Win Two

pitched a total of five shutout innings to receive credit for both wins as the second-place Cincinnati Redlegs won a pair of extra-inning, 4-3 decisions over the New York Giants. Rocky Bridges delivered his first hit and drove in his first run of the year to win the nightcap in the 11th inning after Bob Thurman singled home the winning run in the 10th of the opener. Freeman shut out the Giants for the four innings in the first game and pitched one shutout inning in the second game to pick up his sixth and seventh wins of the campaign.

Carl Furillo drove in six runs with a two-run homer and a grand slam to help the Brooklyn Dodgers down the Chicago Cubs, 10-8, and snap a five-game losing streak. Don Newcombe scored his 12th victory—tops for the NL—although relieved in the seventh. Ernie Banks hit a grand slam homer for the Cubs.

The New York Yankees increased their lead to 10 1/2 games when they downed the Chicago White Sox, 2-1 and 6-5. Whitey Ford outpitched 13-game winner Billy Pierce in the opener and Hank Bauer came through with a two-run single off Jim Wilson to take the 10-inning nightcap. The White Sox, who have lost eight straight, were within three putouts of a split when Fred Hatfield homered in the top of the 10th.

Indians Split Pair

Dave Sisler, aided by Ike DeLoach in the ninth, pitched a two-hitter to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 win after the Cleveland Indians won the first game, 10-7. Ted Williams had two doubles for the Red Sox in the nightcap.

Rookie Tito Francona snapped a 1-1 tie with a homer in the first game and smashed a grand slam in the nightcap to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-2 and 6-3 sweep of the Detroit Tigers. Ray Moore and Hal Brown picked up the wins for the Orioles, who displaced the Tigers in fifth place.

Homers by Lou Berberet and Jose Valdivielso paced the Washington Senators to a 7-3 verdict after Wally Burnette spun a six-hit shutout in his big league debut to give the Kansas City Athletics an 8-0 triumph. Burnette, 27-year old right-hander recalled from Denver last Thursday, struck out four and walked only one.

UCLA's Johnson Scores 7,754 Points For Decathlon Title

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. — Robust Rafer Johnson of UCLA and Milt Campbell of the Navy, two dead-game, never-say-die athletes, today gave Uncle Sam a powerful one-two punch for the Olympic decathlon title at Melbourne.

Johnson copped the National AAU title and Olympic trials Saturday night with 7,754 points in the 10 events—the toughest grind in track and field—despite a knee injury suffered in the high jump Friday night.

It was the fourth best in world decathlon history. Campbell, the former Indiana football and track star who just missed qualifying for the Olympic team in the 110-meter high hurdles, finished second with 7,555 points, 199 back of Johnson.

Johnson missed the world record of 7,895 he set 13 months ago by 231 points and Bob Mathias' 1952 meet mark by a scant 71.

Legion Loses to Red Caps at Nashville, 12-1

The Harrisburg Legion baseball team travelled to Nashville, Tenn., Sunday and lost to a fast running Negro baseball team, 12-1.

Holliman, Red Caps hurler, threw a three-hitter at the locals with Harold Guiley collecting two of them and Dick Odle the other.

Several outstanding defensive plays by the home team kept the Legion's hit and run total down. The Legion will practice Saturday at 5 p. m. with all players expected to be present.

Mel Parnell Belittles Jinx In No-Hit Victory

BOSTON — Nonsense with the jinx on no-hit pitchers, said Mel (Marvelous) Parnell of the Boston Red Sox today. It's the loss of a good night's sleep that's got the most recent dealer of a "dream game" concerned.

As far as the personable 34-year old Sox southpaw is concerned, "I can't have any more woes or worries than I've experienced the past couple of years."

The little Boston hurler explained that the traditional hex on pitchers following a no-hit effort like his 4-0 triumph Saturday against the Chicago White Sox, was the least of his worries.

After being hobbled with a disstringing series of assorted ailments the past two seasons—and a sprained ankle this year—he figured he was more mentally equipped to overcome whatever psychological hex that has beset other recent no-hitters such as Carl Erskine of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jim Wilson, then of the Milwaukee Braves and Sam Jones of the Chicago Cubs.

"I've had my share of troubles so this so-called jinx business means nothing to me," Parnell said wearily. He said he was still so emotion-filled after his fine performance that he couldn't get any sleep Saturday night.

Erskine, Jones and Wilson are still current names in major league box scores—though they have suffered through the post "no-hitter blues"—but the last American League hurler to turn the trick is virtually forgotten. He was a fellow by the name of Alva (Bobo) Holloman who did it in his first major league start for the St. Louis Browns on May 6, 1953.

They Won't Let Mantle Break Babe Ruth's Record, Mays Says

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Frank Frisch, the Old Fordham Flash, asked Willie Mays the question. Does the Say Hey Kid think Mickey Mantle will break Babe Ruth's seasonal home run record of 60?

"No," replied Mays of the Giants, who took a brave stab at the big job last season with 51 home runs. "They won't let Mantle break the record."

What Mays means is that Mantle won't get enough good pitches to hit 61 home runs between now and Sept. 30, even if the Yankee powerhouse's bad knee mends quickly and stays that way. Mays is still very young, but his is the voice of experience after a half season with this year's Giants.

With nobody packing authority behind Willie, the last thing he sees is a pitch lending itself to magnificent distance.

Asked how he would pitch to Mantle were he on the other side, Whitey Ford said: "I'd break curve balls into the dirt and pitch high and away."

In other words, The Switcher would get more free transportation from Ford than an over-worked Pullman conductor.

MANTLE HAS THE ADVANTAGE of Yogi Berra swinging after him, however, and pitchers in a close game just don't walk even the Commerce Clouter to get at the Yogi Man and his natural swing.

"And pitchers more often than not outfox themselves trying to outsmart a power hitter like Mantle," comments Paul Krichell, the oldtime catcher who for years has been the New York Americans' chief of scouts. "They pitch high, low, inside and out, usually with nothing much on the ball. Frequently, they wobble a pitch of that type within batting range and . . . bang! They'd be better off pouring the ball in there with something on it."

Ruth had Long Bob Meusel and Lou Gehrig backing him up thru-out 15 years with the Yankees after starting to revolutionize the game by manufacturing an insignificant, yet record-wrecking, 29 home runs as a pitcher-outfielder with the Red Sox in 1919.

RUTH WAS WALKED so often and struck out so many times that a Johnny-Come-Lately has to wonder how he ever managed to sandwich in 714 home runs, 180 more than any other player of major league ball. He walked 2,056 times, 348 more than Mel Ott, who ranks second in this department. He fanned on 1,330 occasions, 369 more times than Dolph Camilli, the second man. He did everything on the grand scale.

Ruth became a home run specialist while pitching and pinch-hitting for the Sox.

Having no part of Mantle's prairie-wind speed, the Bambino rarely resorted to dragging the ball or bunting, even with the infield back.

IN THE DAYS OF choke hitters, Ruth gripped the bat at the end. He was the first to concentrate on home runs. It was the power in his wrists at the end of a tremendous swing that enabled him to uppercute the ball and belt it for such tremendous distances, and he was as choosy about pitches as is Ted Williams.

If anyone breaks Babe Ruth's seasonal record, it will be Mickey Mantle but, with his mercurial legs, the Oklahoma Kid would be foolish to emulate the Sultan of Swat.

Besides, the Bam is a tough fellow to follow.

Looking At Sports

By BILL MELTON

Lyle Lee, the Galatia native who has come a long way in a short time in the water ski world, is operating a top level ski school this summer in the Lake of the Ozarks country.

In a recent issue of the National Water Ski magazine, a monthly publication, Lee's ski school was rated among the first fifteen in the nation.

Lee's school is operated at Kirkwood Lodge, Lake of the Ozarks, and he has an average of 40 persons enrolled each week.

His oldest student was the grandmother of five grandchildren and the youngest a four-year-old tot. And he taught a one-legged man to water ski.

It is reported that Lee's school is 100 per cent successful—every student enrolled has learned to water ski.

The coaching vacancy at the Cobden high school has been filled with the hiring of James Walker, native of Carbondale. Walker has coached grade school basketball at Karnak and assisted the Karnak high school coach for the past two years.

Walker succeeds Leon Sitter who resigned after six years at the post to accept the principalship of a Johnston City elementary school.

Notre Dame athletic officials have announced that football games to be played at South Bend Oct. 20 and Oct. 27 have been sold out. This is said to be the earliest sell out date for a Notre Dame game in history.

Demand for tickets for the Notre Dame-Michigan State game Oct. 20 and Notre Dame-Oklahoma a week later was so great that only alumni applications were honored, it is said.

The youngsters in Saline county have plenty of opportunity to participate in supervised recreational activities this summer.

Probably the largest program is the one sponsored in Harrisburg by the local Kiwanis club. The baseball setup gave a lot of boys busy, both day and night.

Another big program in Harrisburg is held daily at the playground in Dorrisville.

Carrier Mills has a baseball program that embraces youngsters from the first grade up through high school age and there also is a program each week—Wednesday—for the girls.

Muddy has a general play program and Eldorado's supervised program is of a general nature, with emphasis on baseball.

If the kids want to play, there certainly is plenty of opportunity.

THE DOWNSTATE FISHERMAN'S GUIDE:

River Angling Picks Up; Shawnee Group Puts Priority on Fishing

By PETE BROWN
(From reports by the Southern Illinois University Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory and the Illinois Department of Conservation.)

River fishing has taken up a lot of the slack created by a general slump in southern Illinois lake angling during the past week.

The Big Muddy, running high, has been producing very good catfish catches for trolliners. Equally good reports are coming in from the Ohio. Fly fishermen are doing well in the unpolluted but dandy clear streams and ponds of the Shawnee Forest area. Sportsmen in the Eddyville, McCormick and Glendale sections can show you spots on Lusk, Bay and Sugar Creeks where bass are hungry for action.

Bass fishing at Little Grassy remains just good enough to keep the faithful coming back. Nick Masters of Carbondale picked up a five pounder and another three and one half pounds trolling a Bomber.

Bluegill fishing at Lake Murphysboro remains excellent but nothing else is coming out at all. Crappie, although small, are hitting well at Horseshoe Lake.

Crab Orchard, as clear as it has been all year, is producing next to nothing.

Members of the Shawnee Hills Recreation Area Association, a group formed to promote tourism in a scenically underrated section of Illinois, have named fishing as one of the priority topics on their agenda of proposed improvements.

At a recent meeting in Shawneetown the group's officers applauded lustily when A. H. Martin of Goreville, a director, pled for a "sensible program of building lakes in spring-fed hollows" to lure bass fishermen to the area.

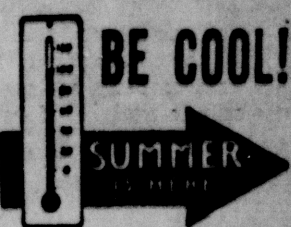

Martin, a veteran bass fisherman who manufactures cement blocks on the side, pointed to Little Grassy as a demonstration of what a good bass lake will produce, tourist-wise. Having one of its best years, Grassy has been pulling in fishermen from all over Illinois and Missouri since early spring.

About 80 per cent of all the land in the United States is now within soil conservation district boundaries, including 85 per cent of all farmland and 90 per cent, in number, of all farms and ranches.

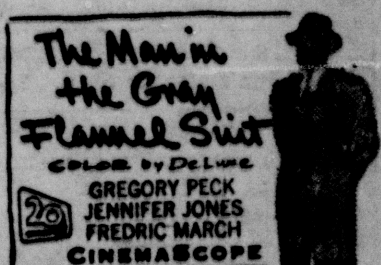

Martin's plea was backed up by Bill Rottmann of Golconda, who told members of a plan to renew a drive for construction of a 1,000 acre lake site in Pope and Massac counties. When plotted 10 years ago the rocky, deeply contoured area was called by the surveyor "the best site he had ever seen," Rottmann said.

Said Martin, "No good bass fisherman is going to go back to an area where you catch bass for about two good years and then get nothing."

Subpena Policeman Whose Firm Has Received $396,000 Fees from Hodge

CHICAGO (UP)—Policeman William D. Lydon, whose decorating firm was paid $396,000 in questionable state checks, was subpoenaed today to tell a Springfield grand jury what he knows about irregularities in the state auditor's office.

Lydon was served a subpoena as he appeared at police headquarters for questioning by Deputy Police Commissioner Kyran Phelan, who wants to know how Lydon managed to double in brass as a policeman and interior decorator.

The subpoena, served by a sheriff's officer outside Phelan's office, ordered Lydon to appear before the grand jury in Springfield July 23 with all the records of his decorating firm, Fabric-Crafts, from Dec. 1, 1952, to the present.

The subpoena also ordered that Lydon bring with him records or receipts of state warrants he received from Sept. 5 to Sept. 15, 1955, May 19 and 20, 1955, Oct. 13 to 19, 1955, Dec. 14 to 20, 1955, and April 9 to 13, 1956.

Lydon's firm redecorated State Auditor Orville Hodge's Springfield and Chicago offices. Records show the firm was paid $396,000 of state money.

But Lydon said he "never got a dime of state money that wasn't properly earned."

In a veiled threat, he told newsmen that those persons responsible for irregularities in the auditor's office had better clear his name, or he would help expose them.

Cairo Man, Boy Slain; Murder Charges Filed

CAIRO, Ill. (UP)—Murder charges have been filed in the shotgun slaying of a man and a boy at Cairo Saturday.

The victims were Leroy Mitchell, 56, and 4-year-old Bruce Taylor, both of Cairo.

Police Sgt. W. F. Hastings said the murder charges were filed against Lawrence Bagby, 26.

Wounded was Mrs. Sue Taylor, 40, mother of the dead boy. The shooting occurred in her home late Saturday afternoon. Police said her condition was good.

Bagby waived preliminary hearing and was to be turned over to Alexander County authorities today.

Police said Bagby and John Alexander had been drinking and came to Mrs. Taylor's home. An argument resulted between Mitchell and the other two men. Hastings said Mitchell either shoved or knocked the two men down.

Bagby got a shotgun and fired through a screen door. The first blast struck Mitchell, the Taylor boy and Mrs. Taylor. Mitchell ran to his car, got a pistol and fired two shots at Bagby, missing both times.

The second blast from Bagby's shotgun struck Mitchell in the chest.

Ringling Brothers Circus Closes

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, the last of the big outdoor circuses, closed short of its 1956 season today. It no longer will be performed under the "big top."

"The greatest show on earth," hit by bad luck from the start of the season, announced that following today's scheduled performance at nearby Heidelberg, Pa., it was returning to its winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla.

"The tented circus as it now exists is, in my opinion, a thing of the past," John Ringling North, president of the circus said.

North said plans are underway for a "new" circus which would "involve an almost completely mechanically controlled exhibition."

Roundworms do the greatest injury to young pigs. Wormy pigs are stunted and unthrifty.

Seek to Strike Drinking Charge Against Marine

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP)—The defense fought today to have stricken from the indictment against S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon charges that he was drinking vodka before he led raw recruits on a "death march" that drowned six men in a tidal wash.

The maneuver—if accepted by a seven-man general court-martial trying the Worcester, Mass., Junior drill instructor at this huge Marine training depot—would deflate considerably the case of the prosecution.

Removal of the drinking charges would leave charges of involuntary manslaughter and of cruelly oppressing 74 members of Recruit Platoon 71 by taking them on a disciplinary march into tidal Ribbon Creek last April 8.

The manslaughter charge, without the drinking allegations as a contributory factor, then would become, in effect, an accusation of faulty judgment on McKeon's part.

Throughout legal arguments in the court-martial session the 31-year-old defendant sat at the counsel table as if transfixed. He stared straight ahead of him at the wall.

His wife, Betty, who is expecting a third child next month, was in the courtroom, but McKeon never glanced at her.

McKeon's lawyer, Emile Zola Berman, argued for dismissal of the drinking charges while the seven-man court-martial was excused from the courtroom.

He was a brother of Mrs. Gertrude Hutchinson, Harrisburg, Mrs. Cora Allen, Eldorado, and Raymond Fife, Benton.

Eisenhower Shakes Up Mid-East Diplomats

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower has ordered a major shakeup in this country's top diplomats in the Middle East.

He intends to name new ambassadors to Egypt, Greece, Morocco, and the Union of South Africa. He also plans to replace George V. Allen as assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs.

Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) said today that his Senate Foreign Relations Committee was notified of the proposed changes last week. They must be confirmed by the Senate.

There was no immediate statement from either the White House or State Department. But according to the Senate notification, these are the proposed changes:

Raymond A. Hare, director general of the Foreign Service, to become ambassador to Egypt. He would replace Ambassador Henry A. Byroade who has held the post only a little more than a year.

Byroade to become ambassador to the Union of South Africa.

Allen to become ambassador to Greece, replace the veteran Cavendish W. Cannon. No one has been mentioned yet to replace Allen in the key assistant secretary here.

Cannon to become the first U. S. ambassador to the newly independent state of Morocco.

The shift of Byroade and Allen were major surprises. It seemed to signal an administration effort to strengthen its representation in the tinder-box Middle East.

Gov't Reports New Peaks Of Production

WASHINGTON (UP)—The economic boom that carried the nation to new peaks of production last year was bigger than realized, even at that time.

The Commerce Department reported Sunday that a new appraisal of 1955 business showed that the "gross national product"—the total output of goods and services—climbed past an annual rate of 400-billion-dollar mark in the final month of the year.

This upsurge carried over into the opening months of 1956, hitting a rate that would equal 403 1/2 billion dollars if sustained for a full year. Crossing the 400-billion-dollar line was an event economists had been expecting to happen at any time.

The department said the gross national product for the whole of 1955 is now estimated at 391 billion dollars—4 billion dollars higher than supposed.

These new boom measurements were recorded in the July "Survey of Current Business," which each year gives a final detailed accounting of the previous year's production and income. One official said it showed the economy in 1955 was "much more vigorous" than the previous records indicated.

Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks said he believes 1956 will be "a little better than last year" if the steel strike is settled fairly soon.
